Dear John

Thank you very much indeed for your very generous donation of £778.00 to The Allison Campbell Trust. The charity is solely run by volunteers, which means that the entire donation can be used to make the last few weeks of end of life patients in Purbeck more comfortable.

The charity has provided numerous items of personal care, requested by Purbeck District Nurses, since its founding in 2021. Some examples of items that have helped people are aromatherapy diffusers which aid relaxation, V shaped pillows to provide more comfort in bed, baby monitors to assist carers to listen out at night and weighted blankets for warmth. The charity has also funded palliative care boxes that the District Nurses take out with them on visits. These boxes contain a range of items, like wipes, cleansing foam, fluffy bed socks and moisturising lip, hand and foot creams. The products can be given out to patients where a need is identified. More recently, we have funded palliative oral care packs, including specialised, gentle toothpastes, toothbrushes and mouth gels which the nurses can hand out to patients suffering from sore and dry mouths as a result of their illness.

Our aim is to make it quick and easy for patients to acquire such items, which are not routinely provided by the NHS, without their carer having to go to any trouble at this difficult period.

The Allison Campbell Trust has been fortunate enough to be able to fund the purchase of a number of new syringe drivers for Purbeck District Nurse teams to take out with them and be able to administer pain relief and other medication quickly and effectively. Prior to this, the teams only had two, and it was at times difficult logistically to use them across the Purbeck area.

Our charity gains its funds from generous donors like yourselves, as well as participating in community events such as Wareham Lions' annual sponsored swim. We've been lucky enough to receive donations from a range of local individuals and businesses.

Once again, thank you very much for your donation. If you would like to know more about the charity, or hold a fundraising event, then please contact us at admin@allisoncampbelltrust.org

Yours sincerely
